

For proper operation of a company's computer network, special attention should be paid to data transport system, both physically and in the equipment that interconnects. Network maintenance operations involve verification services - cable installation in terms of integrity and connectivity services, periodic check or reconfigure equipment type switch with management, router, firewall, switch power, NAS. In terms of maintenance, this type of service is essential. All information processes and any transport service which means data (data, voice, fax) taking place on this network.

- ❖ Services included with standard Back-bone Management are: identification of physical parameters of the network (sockets, cables, electrical connectivity), sizing, configuration empowerment and equipment type switch or router, perform maintenance on equipment cycles type switch or router..

Advantages and Benefits:

- ✓ outsourcing this service requires a much lower cost than the situation of a permanent employee in the company
- ✓ intervention in the shortest time (remote or onsite travel)
- ✓ you can opt for programmed interventions so as not to undermine the work program of the client
- ✓ ability to monitor remote network parameters and response to emergency